CCRDC announces new Chairman of the Board

The Central Coast Regional Development Corporation (CCRDC) today announced the appointment of Graeme Inchley as Chairman of its Board of Directors. Graeme Inchley joined the Board in September 2012 and has been serving as the Executive Manager for CCRDC since January 2013.

“Graeme has been a valuable asset to the CCRDC Board of Directors since 2012. With intimate knowledge of our organisation and more than 25 years of experience in the information technology industry and consulting business, he will be a significant benefit to CCRDC. I am extremely pleased that he will be serving as our Chairman,” said Acting General Manager for the Central Coast Regional Development Corporation, Bob Hawes.

Graeme Inchley said he is delighted to accept the appointment as CCRDC’s Chairman of the Board. “The outlook for the Central Coast region is full of promise. I look forward to sharing my experiences and contributing to the future direction of the organisation,” said Mr Inchley.

CCRDC also announced that Sean O’Toole, former CEO of Landcom/UrbanGrowth, was appointed to the Corporation’s Board of Directors.

“Sean’s extraordinary development and business expertise, coupled with his knowledge of the Corporation means he is ideally and uniquely placed to be able to contribute to the operation and outcomes of the CCRDC Board. Sean will add great value to our Board,” said Mr Hawes.

Ken Jolly, Stephen Brahams and Michael Whittaker have all been reappointed as Board members of CCRDC to 30 June 2015.
